ENCOURAGEMENT

This Sunday's Gospel is our final selection from Mark for this liturgical year. It is taken from the end of Jesus' teaching in Jerusalem immediately preceding the account of his arrest and passion. In it Jesus gives his disciples hope to sustain them through his passion and death and any persecution or suffering that they would encounter after his resurrection.

The words from the book of Daniel also provided hope and encouragement to the people of Daniel's time. The encouragement in these scriptures is meant for us as well, for none of us will escape tribulation in our lives. Followers of Jesus will be able to endure suffering with joyful hope, knowing that Christ's love will lead us along the way of discipleship and give us eternal life with God.

This column is written by Mary Jo Kunzmann, Judy Reilly, and Nancy Jarvis with the hope that it will help you on your journey to grow as disciples of Jesus.

Redemption

We have been bought. There is only one reason: His incredible love for us. Without the cross, you and I would forever bow before the weight of our own brokenness, the chains of sin.

While God loves us even when we sin, he despises what sin has made us become. As he gazed heavenward and cried out to his heavenly Father, Jesus saw your face and your life. What is OUR RESPONSE going to be to his saving grace?

November 4, 2018

Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops will have its annual fall meeting in Baltimore November 12-14. At that meeting, the bishops will address the abuse scandal that has caused incalculable pain and harm for victim-survivors of clergy sexual abuse and their families, just as it has gripped and wounded the Church.

From November 5 through November 11, we commit ourselves—as your bishops—to prepare for that meeting with intense prayer and fasting. With these actions, we will plead for God's assistance as we move forward, but we will also seek to unite ourselves to the suffering of those who have been harmed. Our intentions will be first for victim-survivors and their families, for nothing is more important for the church than the protection of young people and vulnerable adults. We will also pray for you, our parishioners, knowing that this moment weighs heavily on you and your families. We very much need your prayers as we make decisions in November that will strengthen our efforts to safeguard the people entrusted to our care and hold accountable those who fail to do so.

In these days, I have come to a deeper awareness of how much we depend on each other to sustain the life of the Church and to fulfill what the Lord Jesus wants of us. Only together can we reclaim our deepest identity as God's family and move forward as a community of hope and healing.

With my prayers for you and your loved ones,

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Card. Blase J. Cupich
Archbishop of Chicago

THEOLOGY 101

How to Learn about Spirituality and the Life of Faith

from Father Louis J. Cameli

How did you learn the most basic and most important life skills? How did you learn to communicate with others? How did you learn to work with them? How did you learn to love and care for others? You didn't learn through an instruction manual or by way of ideas and theories.

All of us learned the most important truths and skills for life from other people, above all, our parents and siblings and trusted mentors and teachers. And they didn't so much teach us as embody in their very lives the right ways of communicating, working, loving, and caring. We saw them in action, and that forever changed us.

The same is true for the way we journey to God as Jesus' disciples in the Holy Spirit, in other words, for our spirituality or life of faith. As helpful as catechetical and theological books are for giving us clear ideas about God and faith, we can only embrace what those books talk about by coming in contact with genuine people of faith. They offer us witness. They support us and enable on our own journey of faith and spirituality.

Besides those living witnesses—for example, parents, grandparents, the Church's ministers, religious women and men—we also have an extraordinary resource in our tradition. We belong to the Communion of Saints. Outstanding men and women have gone before us and continue to lead, guide, and direct others who are still on their pilgrim way. You may want to consider how these holy ones can help you learn more about your own journey to God.

When I taught spirituality at Mundelein Seminary, I wanted my students to have some sense of the breadth and depth of the Christian experience as it has been lived out over two thousand years. To enable them to have that sense, I taught a course entitled Spirituality by way of Autobiography. Together, we read and reflected on five classic spiritual autobiographies of our Catholic Christian tradition. The autobiographies spanned two millennia, different historical and cultural settings, and the experiences of both men and women. These were very different people in very different settings, yet all of them shared a common journey of discipleship and spiritual growth.

We read the autobiographies in reverse historical order. It's easier to begin with a more familiar time and place. So, the first autobiography was The Seven Storey Mountain by Thomas Merton, a twentieth-century convert to Catholicism and a Trappist monk, who captures contemporary spiritual struggles and yearnings so well. That was followed by The Story of a Soul by Saint Therese of Lisieux, a nineteenth-century French Carmelite nun, who opened entirely new spiritual horizons for ordinary people with her spirituality of the Little Way. Then, we studied Saint Teresa of Avila and The Book of Her Life that chronicled the extraordinary mystical and practical experiences of this sixteenth-century Carmelite nun and reformer. The next writer was the fourteenth-century English anchoress or hermit, Julian of Norwich, a woman of great hope in the face of the Black Plague that destroyed so much of Europe. She wrote The Revelations of Divine Love. Finally, Saint Augustine's Confessions rounded out our study of spiritual autobiographies. This fourth and fifth century Father of the Church commands special attention for his story of searching for God and his dramatic conversion. "Our hearts restless, until they rest in you," he wrote with a wisdom that captures a basic direction in all the autobiographies and our own lives.

These autobiographies are classics of the Catholic spiritual tradition. Precisely as classics, they demonstrate an enduring reliability. If you want to know better or more deeply what it is like to live the mystery of Jesus Christ, they can point the way. There are many inspirational books published every year. Some of them are quite good, others perhaps less so. Proven resources from our tradition ought to be a first choice for those who want to learn more and deepen their sense of what it means to live out our faith.

I remember students telling me that with the exception of Thomas Merton who was American and twentieth-century, the other writers seemed "different" and sometimes difficult to follow. Exactly so, I told them, and that was a good thing. These witnesses to faith draw us beyond ourselves and our often narrow experiences and help us to see the myriad ways that the Mystery of God draws all of us forward, each uniquely in our own circumstances, culture and historical moment. We can truly learn the ways of God from them.

Proverbs 19:17 Project

Michelle Roesner, one of our many teens in this parish, was given a nudge in August of 2017 by God to embark upon a journey to create a project that would impact many homeless in Chicago. Ever since Michelle was little she has felt the desire to help the homeless. When God called her to create a project to do exactly that, Michelle responded with a resounding yes and began to prepare what she calls the "Proverbs 19:17 Project." This project will provide as many of the 64,000 homeless adults and 48,000 homeless children in Chicago with basic supplies to help them as we move into colder months. Michelle plans to create Care Kits consisting of non-perishable and protein filled food, water, blankets and basic hygiene products. While it is impossible to provide every single homeless person in Chicago with these Care Kits with solely one trip into the city, Michelle plans to reach as many of them as she can. She plans to speak at all of the masses on the weekend of November 17th and 18th in order to reach out for donations for her project. Below you can find a QR code to a survey that she has created in order to view how many people will be able to donate. She will also be in the gathering space after all of the masses on the weekend of November 17th and 18th in order to provide paper copies and answer any questions. Please pray for her, the homeless she will help, and all who volunteer.
